Billy Anderson

Billy Anderson is a Box of Crayons' master facilitator, delivering its award-winning coaching skills programs to companies across North America. An executive coach for over 15 years, Billy is also the author of Your Comfort Zone Is Killing You.

Billy continually finds ways to build his own “courage muscle” through world travel. He has led over 30 wilderness leadership trips for Outward Bound, as well as humanitarian projects in Central America and the South Pacific.

Not everything has been smooth sailing. Billy once flew to London, England, for a job interview – but the company went out of business while he was still on the plane. Always finding it difficult to sit still, he skipped two weeks of school to climb a mountain in Morocco. A local took one look at his lack of equipment and said, “You will die.” So he turned around.

Billy has a coaching designation from the International Coach Federation and a business degree from Carleton University.
