

PROGRAM LEADER INTRODUCTION

Cheryl Lower

Cheryl Lower (pronounced “Lauer”) is delighted to be here with us today. Cheryl is one of Box of Crayons’ master facilitators, delivering its award-winning coaching skills programs to organizations across North America. With over 25 years’ experience in managing multicultural teams, consulting and training, Cheryl has helped organizations on four continents execute their strategy in complex, global environments.

She’s passionate about helping organizations solve complex problems and achieve their strategic goals.

She has been a Peace Corps volunteer, consulted on Wall Street, worked in Cambodian refugee camps and had Mother Teresa for a boss — but those are stories for the break. Cheryl believes she held the record of “tallest woman in Thailand” for the seven years she lived and worked there.

When she’s not helping save the planet, she enjoys folding laundry and chauffeuring her two sons around the Boston area.

Cheryl has an MA in international management from the School for International Training and a certificate in organization development from the National Training Laboratories Institute for Applied Behavioral Science.
