Bio

Calvin is the answer to the riddle: What do you get when you combine a Bachelor of Science degree with a television actor, a medical sales representative and a certified coach?

Calvin has had success in a wide range of industries from landing speaking roles in television and film, to winning sales awards as a medical sales representative to coaching the C-suite for Fortune 500 companies.

For over 15 years, as a facilitator and a speaker Calvin has served companies around the globe from virtually every sector with participants ranging from the front line right up to the C-suite. From training managers in the Philippines; to kicking off National Sales Meetings in the United States; to leading virtual sessions from his home in Toronto, Calvin has been tested at every level and every medium. Stakeholders and participants are consistently commenting on the level of energy and interaction that he brings to each session.

Calvin holds a bachelor's degree in Biology from the University of Western Ontario. He later earned Certified Professional Coach designation from Erickson College International, Professional Certified Coach designation from the International Coaching Federation and Neuro Linguistic Programming Practitioner Certification from NLP Centres Canada.

Calvin was a member of Toastmasters and the Alliance of Canadian Cinema, Television, and Radio Artists.
